TOR www. The guy who put Justice League International together gained the ability to control other people's minds with the warning sign being a nose bleed when the Gene Bomb activated his dormant metagene, as seen here in Justice League International 24 when he used his new power to telepathically tell Blue Beetle that he is trapped. Fire, from Justice League International, saw her powers mutate from her simply being able to generate a green flame from her mouth to becoming, in effect, living green flame. This one is a bit of a leap, but the Tasmanian Devil's powers dramatically changed from being a guy who wore a suit to being a mutated beast right around the time of the Gene Bomb, so it appears likely that that is why he mutated. One of the teams most affected by the Gene Bomb was the Doom Patrol, who actually lost a member to the Gene Bomb explosion, the only major fatality. So when Grant Morrison took over the series with Doom Patrol 19, he had to rebuild the cast, and one of the most major additions was Crazy Jane, who gained her powers from the Gene Bomb. Almost two years into his run, Morrison also showed Rhea Jones, an earlier member of the Doom Patrol who had gone into a coma after the Gene Bomb, finally successfully mutated into a new being.
